

Noah's Ark Lost Forever---No Trace Found by Expedition

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Edwin B. Greenwald, AP chief of bureau at Istanbul, Turkey, accompanied the American expedition which this summer explored the Mount Ararat area searching for the remains of Noah's Ark. Here is his final report.)

By EDWIN B. GREENWALD
DOGUBAYAZIT, Turkey —(P)—The Ark of Noah, if ever it landed on Mount Ararat, is lost eternally to the ages. It never will be found.
Some of the Americans who have just completed a gruelling search of the great Ararat chain still hope confidently that it will be uncovered some day.

But use of cold logic makes it certain that it will not. Either it rests forever beneath deep and perpetual ice and snow at the peak of the 17,000-foot mountain or else it has been destroyed and its fragments buried in this volcanic wilderness.
The four-man expedition, first formally organized civilian searching party in Turkish record explored every crevice and every clue. It scouted through the villages for a hundred miles around seeking anyone who might know anything.

The sum total, as expressed so monotonously by the Turks in the villages, is simply: "High birshey!" (an emphatic "nothing").
Nothing, absolutely nothing, was uncovered.
In the mountains, we climbed laboriously across dead volcanos and burned out stone. We scrambled over small plateaus lifeless and black with biting volcanic ash. In the villages the old men and the young had heard the legend that a great boat once rested in the snow way up there.

But no one ever had seen it, and they knew of no one who had.
For all its futility, there was good in the results of the expedition's search. This was reflected in a statement to me by Necati Dolunay, 36-year-old departmental director of antiquities and museums for Turkey. He said:
"It is indisputable that this expedition has done a great deal for science and research as regards the ark. It finally has utterly disproved opinions and observations during more than 100 years that

Last Covered Bridge Repaired

The last covered bridge in Fayette County—over Deer Creek on the Yankeetown Road near Waterloo—is being rehabilitated and preserved.

Stage coaches, Indian trails, widely-scattered colonial houses and covered bridges represent a by-gone era.

The remaining nostalgic symbol of a period that is now memory, the Yankeetown Road bridge over Deer Creek, is being preserved by the county engineer's office.

The only covered bridge surviving in Fayette County, it is undergoing extensive repairs.

County Engineer E. N. Leonard's staff two weeks ago began overall repairs that would give ten more years of life to the 242-foot span.

But, after the work was underway, it was discovered that the center panels were completely rotted.

The Champion Bridge Company of Wilmington was then called in to do the heavy work, for which county forces are not equipped.

Four trestle bents have been constructed to support the middle of the bridge so the two center sections can be replaced.

"The new center tress panels will restore the original strength of the bridge," said Leonard.

But the years of Fayette County's lone covered bridge are numbered.

"A person just shudders when these huge trailer-trucks go roaring through the bridge. It was designed for horse-drawn vehicles," explained Leonard, "and its builders never dreamed of the loads it would eventually support."

He said bridges of this type were usually built under the pressure of landowners who had timber they wanted brought across the river to market.

The four or five-ton timber loads dragged across the bridges were the heaviest loads anyone ever expected them to carry.

The Yankeetown Road bridge is 16 feet wide and stands on the center pier, 16 feet over the water.

County forces, with road superintendent Joe Merritt in charge, are repairing the bridge sidings, trusses and roof and will install new floor joists.

At least one man in Washington C. H.—there are possibly others in the eastern part of the county—has more than a passing interest in the rehabilitation and preservation of the old Yankeetown bridge. Frank Hays helped his father, the late Addison Hays, put in the concrete abutment that holds up the structure in the center of the span.

Hays' face beamed when he looked at the picture of the old bridge that recalled memories of the time when, as a boy, he helped pump out the water inside the cribbing when the concrete was poured.

He said he remembered that he caught a "big sack full of cat fish" when the pool was pumped down.

Hays said he could not remember the date when the abutment was put in or when the bridge was built. He just said "it was a long time ago."

Two New Ohio Laws Effective Wednesday

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28—(P)—Two important pieces of legislation—urban redevelopment and legalization of charges by Christian Science practitioners—became effective tomorrow.

Both measures were passed by the legislature early last summer. Passage of the Christian Science bill terminated a struggle lasting several decades by adherents of that religion to obtain legal sanction for their practitioners to charge for ministrations.

Urban redevelopment, a comparatively new idea in municipal growth-and-planning, has for its primary purpose the elimination of slum areas in larger municipalities and their conversion to suitable residential districts or for business purposes.

Municipalities are given the powers of eminent domain so they may not be blocked by any property owner unwilling to sell his holdings in a slum or blighted area. They may take the property and have the courts fix the price to be paid for it.

Aid To Farmers In Plan Claimed

Backward Nations Would Get Help

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(P)—Secretary of Agriculture Brannan said today the American farmer's need of foreign markets makes President Truman's "point four" foreign policy program vitally important to agriculture.

Brannan was the second cabinet member in as many days to endorse Mr. Truman's "bold new program" for lending U. S. technical and economic assistance to the world's underdeveloped areas.

The plan was presented to the committee yesterday by under-Secretary of State James E. Webb as essential for a prosperous and expanding world economy.

The program has two main parts. The first consists of technical assistance in raising living standards of backward nations. The second is financial aid—chiefly through the international bank and export-import bank—for stimulating private investment in productive enterprises in underdeveloped areas. This would include guarantees of investment capital.

The estimated first year cost of $85,620,000 would cover technical aid in 18 fields ranging from agriculture to health.

North China Goes To Reds

CANTON, Sept. 28—(P)—The vast northwestern province of Sinkiang, which fronts on the Russian border, was reported reliable today to have come over to the Communists.

Tihwa, political center of the sparsely peopled but rich province, has been out of radio contact with Canton for two days. That fact added weight to the report all nationalist officials had pulled out of Tihwa into southern Sinkiang.

An informant said he assumed Chinese Communists had taken over control of strategic centers throughout the northern part of Sinkiang.

American Divorcee To Wed Marquess

LONDON, Sept. 28—(P)—Socialites on both sides of the Atlantic gossiped today of the announcement that a second American Mrs. Simpson would marry in the British royal court circle.

The Marquess of Milford Haven, handsome cousin of King George VI and one of Britain's most eligible bachelors, announced his engagement yesterday to Mrs. Romaine Darghien Pierce Simpson, a New York Park Avenue divorcee.

The nattily-dressed Marquess, 30, who now makes his living selling heaters, told newsmen today he and his fiancée will sail Oct.

Home Is Leased For Nurses At Hospital Here

Sauer Residence To Be Available When It Is Needed

What is considered by those familiar with the deal to be a new and valuable asset has been added to the facilities of the Fayette County Memorial Hospital through negotiations closed Tuesday for the leasing of a Nurses' Home which will house the hospital administrator, Miss Christine Evans and six nurses.

The home secured for this purpose is the modern, attractive brick two story residence of Mrs. Jessie D. Sauer at 230 Delaware and Temple Streets in which Mrs. Sauer, her daughter Mary and son Joseph, now reside within a few blocks of the new hospital.

The members of the Board of Fayette County Commissioners and Mrs. Sauer signed a two year lease for this property, with privilege of renewal for a like period. The lease price is $175 per month, completely furnished, including linens.

An attractive feature of the arrangement is the fact that the hospital administrator and nurses who are expected to live in the home, will pay the rental or lease cost, plus necessary utility expense. The cost to them probably will be less than if they were to rent or lease separate apartments or rooms. The Nurses' Home therefore is expected to be self-supporting.

The new home, according to Miss Evans, hospital administrator who will be in charge, will be available when it is needed.

Tito Slaps Back At Stalin Pressure

By ALEX H. SINGLETON
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 28—(P)—Yugoslavia slapped back at a one-time Communist partner last night by ordering nine Hungarian diplomats to get out of the country.

The action, widening the iron curtain rift between Premier Marshal Tito and the Russian bloc, followed by 24 hours Hungary's 10 Yugoslav legation officials in action in giving walking papers to Budapest.

Tanjug, the official Yugoslav news agency, said Hungary obviously intended to "bring about severance of diplomatic relations between Yugoslavia and Hungary."

Meanwhile Marshal Tito in an address accused Russia and her cominform (Communist international information bureau) satellites of "rattling their arms" along the Yugoslav border.

The cominform countries, said Tito, are "digging trenches in Hungary and Romania."

Just before Tito's speech, Yugoslavia's Foreign Minister Edvard Kardelj told the United Nations assembly in New York that Russia is using all sorts of pressure—from economic blockade to armed demonstrations—to further "imperialistic" aims against his country.

Mrs. Simpson, attractive mother of an 18-month-old girl was divorced in 1948 after two years of marriage to William A. Simpson, whose father was once president of Marshall Field and Co., Chicago department store.

The name of Milford Haven's fiancée recalled the romance of Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson 13 years ago when King Edward VIII—now the Duke of Windsor—gave up his throne to marry her. The two Mrs. Simpsons are not related.

Salesman Sam Hits Snag On Europe Flight

PARIS, Sept. 28—(P)—"Great Britain can grad the world markets now if she can only deliver the goods," Sam Keener, director of the Salem Engineering Company of Salem, Ohio, said today.

Keener is better known as America's "uniformed" traveling salesman. He travels about Europe in a four engined airplane that used to be assigned to Gen. Alexander Vandergrift. Keener wears a blue-grey uniform touched off with a gold braid decoration he designed himself because "uniforms help you get places in Europe."

Last year Keener took two million dollars in orders during his European tour, but this year he ran into a snag.

"I was in Milan the day they announced the devaluation," Keener said in an interview. "Right away it was like a wall in front of me. Everyone is looking towards the pound now to see what it does. They are willing to delay weeks or even months if they can't get the pound."

Boys Get Thrill Watching Trains Run over Them

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(P)—Two high school boys were hauled off a railroad embankment by police yesterday, halting what the youths described as their newly discovered idea of a thrill.

Detectives had seen the boys walking along the tracks and then burrow into a 10-inch deep opening under the ties. The officers became more curious when they saw the boys spread a sheet over them.

The cop wanted an explanation. "We like to lie under the tracks and watch the trains go over us," they told detectives James O'Neil and John Pretzel. "We were doing it just for a kick."

The boys told the detectives they discovered the cleared opening under the tracks about a week ago climbed into it. Within inches of their heads, they said, six trains on the Chicago and North Western Railroad tracks zoomed over them within 30 minutes.

Yesterday they brought along a sheet so they wouldn't get their clothes dirty. They also picked the rush hour—between 5 and 6 P. M.

The boys, Raymond Salaman, 16, and Thomas Collins, 15, were turned over to their parents by police.

Steel Industry Peace Now Believed Near; Armco Hikes Pensions

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—(P)—Renewed hope for peace in the steel industry developed today with reliable reports that the U. S. Steel Corporation had agreed to grant a 10-cents-an-hour pension and welfare package.

The steel company, bellwether of the industry, was reported still insisting that employees contribute something to the pension program.

The United Steelworkers' Union was silent. The union previously had stood flat on demands that the steel companies pay the entire cost of the pension plan.

However peace hopes rose on reliable information that U. S. Steel would have a statement later in the day, and an announcement by Cyrus Ching, federal conciliation director, that he would have a statement on the steel dispute about 4 P. M. EST.

Ching was reported ready to offer services of his conciliators to speed bargaining over the new U. S. Steel offer.

The new proposal was reported to provide for a higher company outlay than previously offered.

Reliable Reports

Reliable reports said this offer provides that:
U. S. Steel would pay four cents an hour to support a welfare program if the employees pay an average of two cents an hour.

A joint study of pensions would be undertaken, as suggested by the presidential fact-finding board with the company paying up to six cents an hour in a program to which employees also would contribute.

The plan be contingent on the union's agreeing to extending existing labor contracts until April 30, 1951.

Wall Street interpreted these developments as pointing toward a settlement, and stocks jumped from a few cents to more than $2 a share.

In Duluth, Minnesota, miners who dig the ore for the steel mills called off strike plans after a talk with steelworkers union headquarters in Pittsburgh.

The Armco Corporation, a steel producer with headquarters at Middletown, O., announced agreement on a pension plan with its union workers—not affiliated with the United Steelworkers who had set an industry wide strike deadline at 12:01 A. M. Saturday.

ARMCO HIKES PENSIONS

MIDDLETOWN, Sept. 28—(P)—Armco Steel Corporation and an independent union today agreed to boosted pensions and improved insurance for pensioned workers—but the workers still help bear the cost.

The new pension plan calls for $100 a month for approximately 4,500 workers in two Armco plants in Middletown.

It does not affect other Armco plants, whether they have company unions or bargain with the CIO United Steelworkers.

Ford Strike Deadline Near

DETROIT, Sept. 28—(P)—In a room at the top of one of Detroit's midtown hotels, worn negotiators worked against time early today to prevent a strike of 115,000 Ford Motor Co. production workers.

The deadline of 12:01 A. M. Thursday—the time when the CIO United Auto Workers Union has said it will terminate the present contract with Ford—was less than 24 hours off as bargainers continued a session that ran all night.

If a new contract is not signed by midnight, the UAW has threatened quick strike action that would shut down the Ford system. The late snag in negotiations, it was reported, involved non-economic issues such as temporary layoffs and production standards, rather than the knotty union pension and insurance demands.

Ohio Coal Field Tense As Strike Still Effective

Similar Situation In Pennsylvania; No Break in Sight

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28—(P)—Judges in Stark and Noble Counties Tuesday issued orders restraining interference with the operation of two coal mines.

The Noble County order was directed against the United Mine Workers Union, whose members have been on strike since last week. The restraining order was issued by Judge L. B. Frazier on the application of the Moscrip Mining Co. of Belle Valley, which claims a pay roll of 400.

The mine reopened yesterday afternoon under protection of the court order. It had closed Monday after 19 automobile loads of men arrived at the mine and persuaded the firm's employees to leave their jobs.

Stark County Common Pleas Judge George N. Graham issued his order at the request of the Merrick Coal Co., near the Stark-Carroll County line. The order was directed at Edgar Russell and James House of near Malvern and Robert Dillinger and John Randall of Sandy Township.

Court Appealed To

The J. D. Ross Co. of Bristol Station filed an injunction suit in Perry County common pleas court yesterday asking that the UMW be enjoined from interfering with work at the firm's mine. It was closed Monday by the same tactics which closed the Moscrip mine.

Two more mines were closed yesterday near Dundee (Tuscarawas County) after motorized bands of between 30 and 45 called on them.

Sheriff Paul Pancher of Tuscarawas County announced a "hands off" policy in the wave of forced coal truck dumpings in the county. Motorized caravans, identified by Pancher as containing strikers, have forced drivers to pull cab levers which mechanically dump the mined coal along the roadside. About 20 such incidents have been reported, but no arrests have been made. Neither has there been any violence.

MINES UNDER GUARD

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 28—(P)—Gun toting guards protected more than 1,000 non-union miners who dug soft coal in western Pennsylvania today. Heavily armed state police patrolled main highways and isolated roads to keep violence from spreading.

"It's something like a powder keg that might explode at any time," said Sheriff A. R. Hanold of Clarion County. "We're keeping a mighty close watch on the situation to see that no one gets hurt."

The tense situation developed

Heart Clinic Here Oct. 13

Specialist to Examine
Youngsters Under 18

Thursday, October 13, might well mark the turning point where some Fayette County children will soon be actively playing and having fun for the first time in their lives.

A Heart Clinic will be held on that day by the county Board of Health, announced Dr. Gordon E. Savage, health commissioner.

Dr. Robert Lyons, associate professor of pediatrics, College of Medicine, University of Cincinnati, will be in charge of the clinic.

Dr. Lyons is recognized as a specialist in children's heart conditions. Dr. Savage pointed out he spoke on rheumatic fever at the state heart institute held recently in Cincinnati.

The clinic will open at 10 A. M., with examinations being made by appointment and upon the advice or recommendation of the private physician.

"We are mainly interested in children," said Dr. Savage, "preferably under 16 or 18 years of age."

"Operations now have proven very successful in certain types of heart conditions. And more can be done for children because their hearts respond better to corrective treatment," he explained.

New Life For Kids
"In many cases, children have been enabled to live normal and fuller lives after the correction of a heart condition that deprived them of the play and fun enjoyed by others," continued Dr. Savage.

"A heart condition cripples a child just as much as an orthopedic case, where there is an obvious physical defect," he added. The clinic will be equipped to handle three types of cases: congenital conditions (a heart condition present at the time of birth); suspected cases of rheumatic fever and definitely diagnosed cases of rheumatic fever.

Such cases are turned up both by pre-school examinations and by the private physicians, who are welcome to the aid of the clinic for consultation.

The heart clinic examination, a very thorough one, according to Dr. Savage, involves tests with the stethoscope, fluoroscope, electrocardiogram and a blood pressure check.

A quota of 25 has been set for the heart clinic in this county and about a half-dozen appointments have already been made.

necessary to take advantage of the change.

"This is the best step forward since the war, bigger than E. C. A. or anything else," Keener said. "If Great Britain can deliver the goods now they can get the business."

He expressed fear that increased production costs due to wage increases and rising prices might spoil Britain's great opportunity. Keener had planned a round-the-world trip this year, but went back to London to "resurvey" the situation.

Everywhere he had gone, Keener said, he heard "speculation as to what the Russians are going to do."

He pulled up his cowboy belt another notch and snorted: "We don't give a damn what Russia does. We'll take that step when we come to it."

from agriculture and education through labor and the weather.

This nation would contribute about half the total, while international agencies and the recipient countries themselves would put up the rest.

The American republics of Central and South America are slated to get 38 per cent of first year help, the Near East and Africa 31 per cent and Asia, and the Far East 31 per cent.

Some Mines Open

As John L. Lewis' 480,000 United Mine Workers started the 10th day of their strike. There's no sign of an early break in the walkout although the miners are scheduled to meet today with southern operators at Bluefield, W. Va. On Thursday Lewis is expected to attend a meeting with northern and western operators at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Reports of increased picketing came from several mining states as an estimated 22,000 men dug coal. Most of the diggers are members of the independent progressive mine workers in Illinois and Kentucky. The others are non-union miners in small operations, such as those in western Pennsylvania where more than a score of pickets have been arrested.

COAL APLENTY IN OHIO
COLUMBUS, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Coal mines in Perry county— which now produce one-fourth of all the coal mined in Ohio—won't become exhausted for an estimated 200 years.

That's the opinion of Norman K. Flint of Columbus of the Geological survey of Ohio. His paper on the coal reserves of Perry County was presented Tuesday at the mid-year meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

He based his estimate on a 43 to 65 per cent recovery of all coal still under ground, at the average rate of about 1,600,000 tons per year.

"Our study shows that previous yearly estimates of coal reserves in Perry County were much too high because they were based on inadequate data," the paper said. "Program of detailed mapping should be continued and coal reserves recalculated on the basis of the additional data."

Perry County coal fields originally had about 1,000,000,000 tons of coal, he said.

Dr. M. T. Sturgeon of Ohio University now is engaged in the geological mapping of Athens County and W. T. Merrill of Ohio State University is mapping the coal-bearing portion of Hocking County, Flint added.

The Ohio development and publicity commission presented each aine member at the meeting with a booklet detailing Ohio's resources. The booklet was designed to give the engineers and metallurgists a comprehensive picture of the state's transportation, research, water, power, minerals and taxes.

The state's importance as a mineral producer was related yesterday by State Geologist John H. Melvin.

Ohio ranks ninth among the states with $300,000,000 worth of mineral production yearly, he said. Ohio is first in production of lime, second in limestone, and third in salt. Coal, oil and gas also are produced.

He is survived by his widow and four sons, Kenneth, Marlin and Roger of Jamestown and Carl of Cedarville. A brother, Frank Ritenour, lives in Toledo.

Funeral services are to be held at 2 P. M. Saturday at the Powers Funeral Home in Jamestown. Interment is to be made in the Jeffersonville Cemetery.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Bareheaded on bright, cold Jan. 20 President Truman stood on the temporary wooden stand at the capitol and delivered his inaugural address, beginning his full, four-year term.

In that address he outlined four roads down which he thought the U. S. should travel in the years ahead.

He listed them as four points in this country's foreign program:

1. We should continue to stick by the United Nations. This the U. S. is doing.

2. We should continue our programs for world recovery such as the Marshall Plan. Later this year Congress voted to continue the Marshall Plan.

3. We should help strengthen friendly nations against fear of aggression. Congress has acted on that, too. It approved the Atlantic Pact, linking us in a military alliance with western Europe. And then it voted arms for our allies.

4. We must set out on a "bold new program for making the benefits of our scientific advances and our industrial progress available for the improvement and growth of underdeveloped areas." On this Congress has done nothing this year, is not expected to act before next year.

But since that January day the "bold new program" has been known as "point four." It has received a lot of attention. And Mr. Truman and his advisers have been pushing for it.

They think point four should be carried out in two main ways:

1. By investing American money — meaning American businessmen investing their money — in backward areas to help build them up. When businessmen invested their money that way it would be understood they'd be investing to make a profit.

2. By technical and scientific help. For example, American engineers would be sent into the backward areas to teach the people there some of the skills which have made this country so advanced industrially.

Mr. Truman's advisers have sent two bills to Congress to get approval on those two main plans for carrying out point four.

Under No. 1, Congress would guarantee that American businessmen would get some protection on the money they invested in the backward places. For example, a guarantee that this country would protect them against

Forrest Woods Is Injured Seriously

Forrest Woods, 52, Circleville trucker was taken to Berger Hospital, in that city, where he is now recovering slowly from injuries sustained when a truck driven by Cecil O'Conner, 33, Williamsport, swerved into a driveway at a filling station and kept going after striking Woods.

O'Conner was held to the grand jury under $200 bond when he pleaded innocent to the charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

Woods sustained a fractured pelvic bone, lacerated head abrasions and other injuries.

The accident occurred at the intersection of routes 22 and 104 two miles west of Circleville.

Robert G. Woods of Washington C. H., son of Forrest Woods, was in an accident at the intersection when a car swerved into his car, and it was while Forrest Woods was examining his son's damaged car in the driveway of a filling station that O'Conner prevented loss if their investments were seized.

Under No. 2, Congress is asked to vote $45,000,000 to cover the expenses of getting the technical part of the program under way. For example, the expenses of sending engineers, scientists or economic advisers into the backward places

Today James E. Webb, under-secretary of state, was to go before the House Foreign Affairs Committee to plug for that second part of the point four program: money for technical help to backward areas.

Because Congress is so close to finishing up its work for 1949 — or all the work it wishes to finish before going home — no action is likely on point four before Congress returns in January to start its 1950 work.

Meanwhile, the U. S. is taking part in various programs to help backward countries through international tie-ups. For example:

The food and agriculture organization and the world health organization, both of which have sent experts into countries which need help in health and farming work.

Happy Rogers Given Freedom

E. D. (Happy) Rogers, who has spent more time in the Dayton Workhouse than any other Fayette Countyman, according to officials here, was given his freedom

Tuesday after having served several years in the institution.

Rodgers, whose chief offense was selling liquor illegally, had been in the institution several times. This time he had been there so long the county commissioners decided it was time for his release and Police Court Justice R. H. Sites signed an order to this effect.

Workhouse officials long since had made Rodgers a trusty, and it is understood he had plenty of freedom.

The Fayette County Medical Association Compulsory Dental Health Insurance Is NOT The Answer

The dental health of the American people must be improved but compulsory health insurance is not the answer.

1. It is not good legislation for the government because:

- A. It is too tremendous a task for the government to administer.
- B. There is a misconception by the people of what the government can and will deliver in health services.
- C. It will create an unwieldy government bureau.
- D. It is an uncertain financial burden for the government.
- E. It is contrary to democracy in government since it stifles private enterprise.

2. It is not good legislation for the people because:

- A. It promises more than it can deliver.
- B. It will cause deterioration of dental service and lower level of health.
- C. The necessary administrative procedures will delay treatment.
- D. It will become a tax burden.
- E. It will eventually require regimentation which is not the American way of life.

3. It is not good legislation for the profession because:

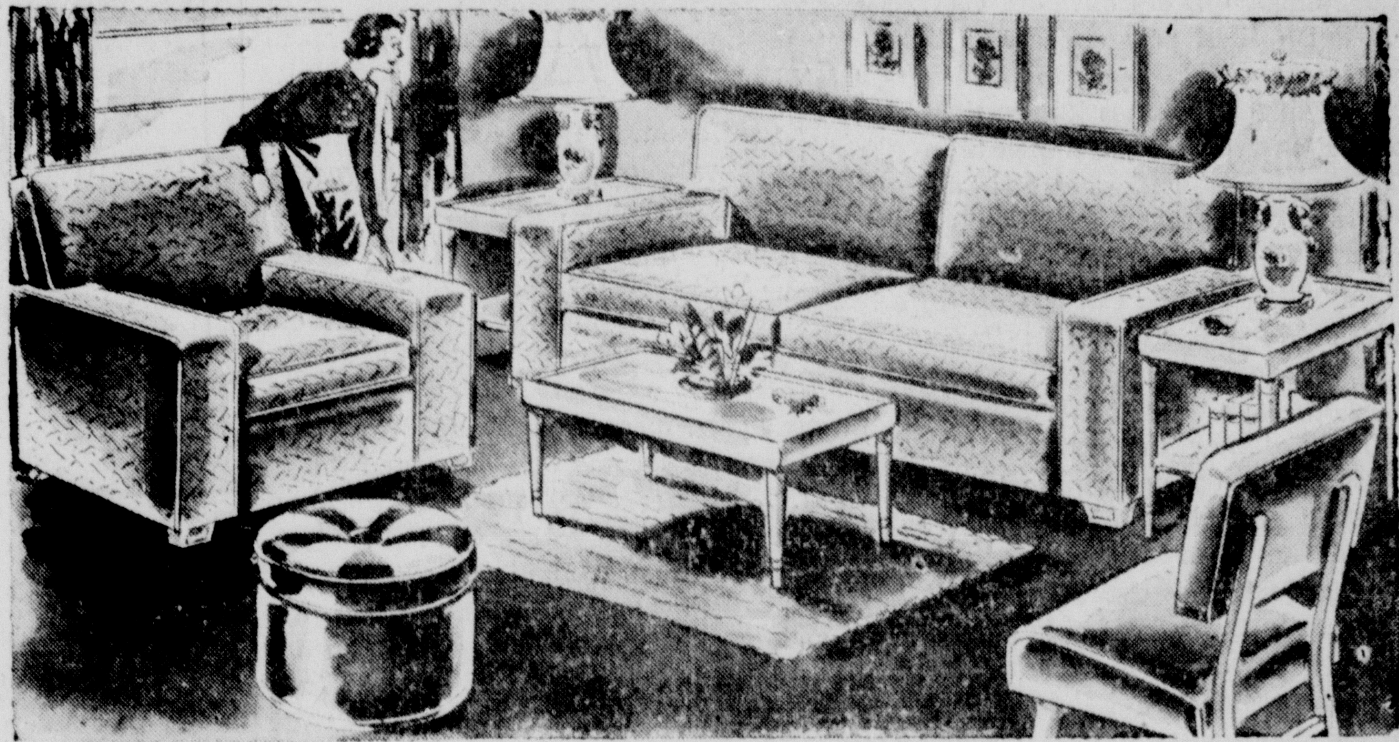

- A. It will destroy competition, inhibit ambition and industry.
- B. It will result in mediocrity in the profession.
- C. Excessive paper work will reduce the number of chairside hours which a dentist may devote to his patients.

The profession needs ethical competition, the private relation to and direct responsibility for the health of the patient to attain its highest achievements.

The Association and the dental profession always has been and always will be interested in the health and particularly the dental health and welfare of the American people. It will conscientiously scrutinize any programs offered which relate to its legitimate field of interest, and it will comment fairly and without prejudice or selfish motives on such programs. The dental profession opposes the enactment of the National Health Insurance and Public Health Act because it is not good health legislation for the people of the United States of America.

The car that likes to be compared!

PLYMOUTH

Great Value is built into every beautiful inch of the new Plymouth. For the positive proof—compare! Put this greatest Plymouth ever built up against the other cars—feature for feature, dollar for dollar, mile for mile!

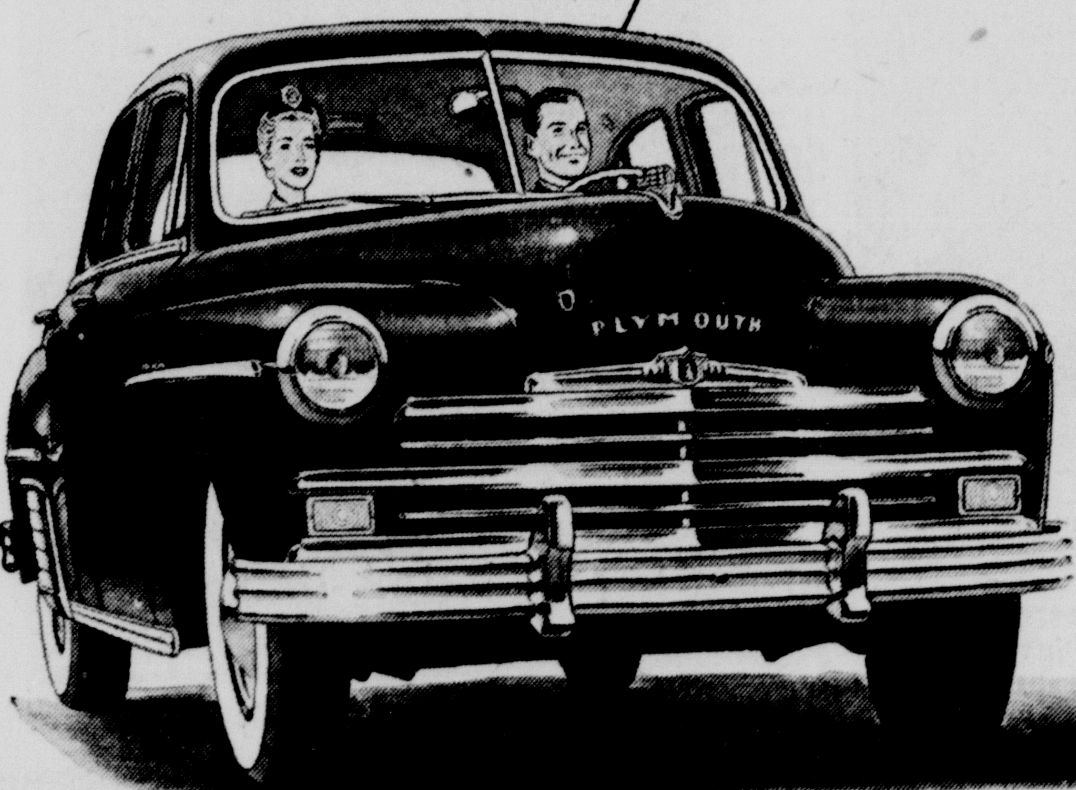

Look at all three of the leading low-priced cars. Plymouth — and only Plymouth — has the famous Air Pillow Ride — now smoother than ever.

The new, more powerful Plymouth engine has a compression ratio of 7 to 1 — low-priced car "A" has 6.8 to 1 — low-priced car "B" has 6.6 to 1. You get greater performance because Plymouth's higher compression squeezes more power out of every drop of gas.

Plymouth is the only low-priced car with the spectacular new double safety feature — Safety-Rim Wheels with Safe-Guard Hydraulic Brakes. Patented retaining humps hold the tire straight on the rim in the event of a blowout. Powerful brakes give quick, safe, accurate stops, without grabbing or biting.

These are just some of the reasons why the new Plymouth is the car that likes to be compared — not just to other low-priced cars — but even to cars costing hundreds of dollars more!

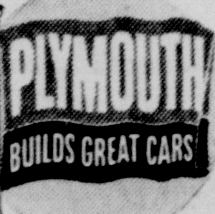

Visit your Plymouth dealer who will be glad to arrange a demonstration ride.

White sidewall tires, chrome wheel covers and rear fender scuff guards optional at extra cost.

Of 22 quality features found in high-priced cars—the new Plymouth has 21... low-priced car "A" has 13... low-priced car "B" has 4. That's why the Plymouth today—more than ever before—is the low-priced car most like high-priced cars!

Labor Unions and Control of Politics

In most phases of the campaign to destroy the influence of Communism in American life, it is impossible to isolate the problem of Communism and deal with it as though it were one simple, evil thing, without relation to other political questions. We cannot escape the fact that the methods used to deal with Communism today will become part of our political heritage tomorrow.

One element of the problem is the present struggle within the Congress of Industrial Organizations over the issue of union leadership which is sympathetic with Communism. The C.I.O. national leaders some time ago embarked on a campaign to drive all pro-Communist officers out of C.I.O. unions. A finish fight now appears to be joined between the C.I.O. and the United Electrical Workers, which has just re-elected its top national officers, commonly described as pro-Communist, and adopted resolutions demanding that the C.I.O. cease its attacks against the electrical union and its officers.

The question of Communism is immediately involved, and yet much greater matters may be at stake. The C.I.O. demands that the U.E.W. follow the policy of the parent organization on domestic political action and such related political matters as support of the Marshall Plan and the North Atlantic Pact. It is conceivable that the question really to be decided is whether the great national labor organizations should have power to control the political policies of member unions and local chapters and Communism becomes a side issue. Most Americans, if they give serious consideration to the future consequences, would want to think it over a little before deciding that question.

Political Exception

As a general rule, when a Republican organization endorses a Democratic candidate for public office, or vice versa, that is real news. But there is a frequent exception in the case of judgeships, and so it caused hardly a ripple of excitement the other day when a Republican convention at Mineola, New York, did just that.

There have been innumerable instances of agreement of the parties on the re-election of a judge who has made a good record, and even occasional ones of agreement on selection of a candidate for a vacancy. This is as it should be. The selection of a judge for the bench of the local courts is a matter, perhaps above all others, where the qualifications of the candidates ought to be absolutely the only consideration, and party politics should enter not at all. The judgeship is too vital to all people to be a reward for political fidelity.

Strike Victims

Who suffers most from a strike? Is it the employer, who loses the profits of production, or the consumer, who loses the goods that might have been produced? Or is it the worker, who loses his wage?

The pay of coal miners, who went on strike September 19, runs around $14 a day. Normally they work a five-day week, which means a gross income, before deductions for such items as income tax, of around $70 a week. No miner ever counts on working fifty-two weeks in a year, so part of it must be saved. Since last June the coal miners have been working a three-day week, by union edict, so family budgets geared to $70 a week have had to run on $42. Now income stops.

It might be that a general coal strike hurts someone else worse than the miners and their families, but the point would be hard to make.

You may live through 1949 if you continue to drive carefully and watch out for the other fellow.

Why No Brain Trust of Women?

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Tell the average woman she's a genius and what happens?

She immediately begins wondering if you are trying to break it to her easy that her years are showing, her nose needs powdering—or her face needs lifting. In any case she takes the compliment with deep suspicion.

But if, on the other hand, you remark to her, "You're no genius, Esmeralda," she gets downright annoyed. She unsheathes her claws and demands to know why.

Waverly Root gives some of the reasons in an American Mercury magazine article flatly entitled, "Women Are Intellectually Inferior."

Naturally Root doesn't infer that women are mentally lower than barbaric apes, the giant panda, polar bears or the praying mantis. He simply rates them lower than the only other sex they share the human race with—that simple creature of good will, man.

At least he holds this to be true on the spotlight I. Q. level. Genius, the man says, is strictly confined to the male.

Root says this isn't just one fellow's opinion. He cites a study made by Mrs. Cora Sutton Castle who sifted six encyclopedias looking for eminent women and found only 848 listed.

"It is a sad commentary on the sex," commented Mrs. Castle dismally, "that from the dawn of history to the present day less than 1,000 women have accomplished anything that history has recorded as worth while."

Getting at the root of the matter, Root says that genius is creative and that while many women have shown fine talent—such as Jane Austen, the Brontës, George Eliot and Emily Dickinson—none have reached the peak of greatness.

"There are absolutely no feminine names, none at all, which can stand beside those of the really great—no Beethovens, no Michaelangelos, no Shakespeares, no Tolstoys."

And Root says women can't escape this truth by blaming it on the tyranny in which men have held women through the ages. He says you can't explain female lack of genius by lack of opportunity —the girls just don't have the genius factor in their chromosomes, those little gadgets in the sex cells that control heredity. Some lucky men do.

But listen, ladies, to the masculine penalty for being so smartly—

"It is also a fact that idiocy is more common among men than among women, who may well consider themselves happy to rank lower in genius for the sake of ranking higher in sanity."

Root inclines to the belief that genius, anyway, is only the rich cousin of madness.

"You are indeed, madames, barred from genius," he said. "But what of it? Genius, from nature's point of view, is a dangerous abnormality; and she has dealt handsomely by the women in exempting them from it."

But Mr. Root certainly loses any claim to genius himself if he thinks that will satisfy the girls. This is the day of the demanding female and if she wants genius she'll get it—even if she has to carry her equal rights campaign to every chromosome under the American flag.

It ought to be easier to change a dumb little chromosome than the mind of a determined woman.

Index to Distressing Current

By George E. Sokolsky

The mayoralty campaign in New York is an index to a distressing trend in this country for 20 years to split up the American people into groups, classes, nationalities, religions. Our nation was conceived in the magnificent ideal of the inalienable rights of the individual, in respect for the dignity of the individual human being. The politicians are degrading that ideal by their manipulations among ancestral nationalities and in their stimulation of religious bigotry and hatred. They have made considerable capital out of this.

The Republican party has altogether disappeared in New York City, undoubtedly because of its lack of skill in such manipulations. Its place has been taken, perhaps temporarily, by the Liberal party, an offshoot of the international ladies garment workers union. The liberal party is controlled by Dave Dubinsky who also runs the union. His authority in the union rests upon competent management and proposal decency beyond anything expected of men similarly occupied. His political power rests upon his ability to produce a block of about 400,000 votes and the treasury of his union when needed.

So he nominated the Republican-Liberal-fusion candidate for mayor, Newbold Morris, a nice man who made speeches for LaGuardia when the Little Flower regarded the occasion of not sufficient importance for his personal attention. Morris is so unsure of himself that he dares not decide whether he is for John (Foster) Dulles, the Republican candidate for United States senator, or Herbert Lehman, the Democrat running for that office on the Liberal party ticket. So Morris runs with Dulles and also with Lehman which would be ridiculous were it not also an index to a serious national disease, namely, that men run for office.

Into this campaign has crept the issue of the Barden bill. The issue is raised because when Cardinal Spellman was fighting that bill, Herbert Lehman attacked the Cardinal. That was supposed to kill his political chances, until it was conceived that he could attack the Cardinal but be against the Bradin bill. By this means, he would get the Jewish vote and also the Irish Catholic vote which he needs, if he is to win. Of course, neither the Jews nor the Catholics, nor the Protestants, nor Italians nor Puerto Ricans, should vote on any such group basis. But they do and it is very bad for the United States of America. Newbold Morris would not not support the opposition to the Barden bill so here is his position: Lehman, on the liberal party ticket, opposes the Bradin bill; Morris, on the same ticket, supports it; but Bill O'Dwyer is also a running-mate of Lehman on the Democratic ticket and he opposes the Bradin bill. Did you ever see such a mix-up?

It is about the same on all issues. Morris runs as the heir to Fiorello LaGuardia, the famed Little Flower, who after he ceased to be mayor of New York, ran UNRRA which became a great refuge for Communists and served Soviet Russia better than it did the United States. And as anybody who knows New York must know, LaGuardia's favorite was not Morris but Vito Marcantonio, who is also running for mayor on the American labor party ticket, which is the political arm of the Communist party in New York. If anyone can claim to be the ideological as well as personal heir of the Little Flower Vito Marcantonio can establish such a claim.

As a matter of fact, Vito's great political power was organized originally by LaGuardia to get himself elected to Congress. It was based upon a Negro and Italian vote. To that Marcantonio added the Puerto Ricans whom he imported by airplane and put on the relief rolls with LaGuardia's connivance. These Puerto Ricans now number about 250,000 in New York.

Where is the United States in all this? It is easy to say, as some do, that this country starts west of the Hudson River, but that is a wisecrack and answers nothing. The same pattern appears in the cities of those who make the wisecrack. The United States cannot survive as a con-

Sokolsky human being. The politicians are degrading that ideal by their manipulations among ancestral nationalities and in their stimulation of religious bigotry and hatred. They have made considerable capital out of this.

The Republican party has altogether disappeared in New York City, undoubtedly because of its lack of skill in such manipulations. Its place has been taken, perhaps temporarily, by the Liberal party, an offshoot of the international ladies garment workers union. The liberal party is controlled by Dave Dubinsky who also runs the

Diet and Health

Many Disturbances Are Caused by Teeth

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WHEN any part of the body is infected with germs, there is always danger that these germs or their poisons may be carried by the blood to other parts of the body where they may do infinitely more harm than in their original location.

In young persons, the most common site of such infections is the tonsils, and in the older persons, the teeth. Such a focus of infection may also be located in the sinuses connected with the nose, in structures connected with the urinary tract, the gallbladder or the appendix. The germs usually responsible are streptococcus or staphylococcus and pneumococcus.

Manifold Effects

These foci of infection may have manifold effects. It is thought that they play a part in the production of arthritis or inflammation of the joints, in neuralgia of the face and arms, muscle inflammation, kidney inflammation, disturbances of the eyes, a skin disease called erythema nodosum, and blood clot formations in the veins. In persons suffering from these disorders, a search should be made for such foci of infection, which, if found, should be eliminated, either by medical treatment or by operation when necessary.

So many older persons have retractions of the gums, pockets around the teeth, and fragments of roots of teeth, that it is important in the disorders mentioned that the teeth be given careful study. If any are found which could be a source of infection, they should be removed.

It is true that many apparently healthy persons have teeth infections which for long periods do not seem to produce any ill effects. Nevertheless, any tooth which is questionable or definitely involved should be taken out.

Infected Teeth

The dangers of extraction of infected teeth have been largely eliminated through the use of the sulfonamide drugs and penicillin prior to the extraction.

However, these operations are usually not advisable during the poliomyelitis season because of the danger of a severe form of the disease developing.

Of course no tooth should be needlessly sacrificed, but since infected teeth may cause serious damage to vital structures, there should be no hesitancy in eliminating them.

Answer: Getting rid of the excess fat would require a reducing diet. Exercises for strengthening the muscles of the abdomen might be helpful.

Trial of Cecil Yankey To Start October 31

HILLSBORO, Sept. 28—(AP)—The new trial of Cecil Yankey, 41, of Greenfield, who already has served 30 months of a life sentence for murder in connection with the same crime, will open Oct. 31. Yankey won his freedom from Ohio Penitentiary in July on grounds he was sentenced by one judge instead of three. He was found guilty of the slaying of Leroy Woodland, 71, during a robbery in Greenfield in 1947.

RFC Making Check On Lustron Prospect

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28—(AP)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation which has a $37,500,000 stake in Lustron Corporation's factory-built homes venture here, is checking on market prospects.

Lustron officials said today that Booz, Allen & Hamilton of Chicago, consulting engineers hired by the RFC, have been at the plant for one week. They are going over the market for prefabric housing in general and for the Lustron porcelain enamel steel home in particular.

The study, the officials said, is to determine whether or how far the government lending agency should go in adding to the loans it has made since mid-1947 to finance the Lustron undertaking.

The engineers are checking demand for the homes, marketing conditions, and costs, a Lustron spokesman said. Their complete report is expected by the RFC before the end of the year.

Noah's Ark Lost

The ark is in plain sight.
It has disproved the all too-frequent claims that it is on the mountain plateau that reaches between Small Ararat and Big Ararat. Many persons, including Russians, have held to this contention. I do not believe that anyone, Russians or others, ever saw the ark on the mountain.

Necati Bey, who accompanied the expedition, was certain from the outset that nothing would be found.

"This is a volcanic area," he explained. "During all the thousands of years since the ark was supposed to have sailed atop the deluge, anything that might have been here surely would either have been covered or destroyed." There have been reports of the ark's "discovery" in other parts of Turkey. Necati Bey said that the ark — "if there was one" — must be somewhere between the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers. That would put it somewhere west of Ararat.

Dr. Aaron J. Smith, Greensboro, N. C., Bible school teacher and former missionary to China, headed the expedition.

A pious, white-haired man whose 61 years kept him at base camps rather than going up Ararat, he still is not reconciled that the ark is not there. He came with an abiding faith that it will be found one day.

"We have made an attempt but failure of it does not imply the ultimate failure of the ark's recovery," he said.

E. J. Newton, 46-year-old house painter from Colfax, N. C., likewise still believes the ark is here. But to find it, he said, would require months of exploration.

But the other two members of the expedition now are satisfied it is not here. They are Walter Wood, 38, development engineer of Sea Cliff, Long Island and Wendell Ogg, 24, physicist at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic energy plant.

Wood sized it up for the two with a curt, "I've had enough. But at least I am satisfied personally that it is not here."

The expedition arrived at Istanbul at the end of June, but it was not until late in August that they finally obtained a vote by the council of ministers granting them authorization to proceed to Ararat.

The mountain towers above the triangle where Turkey, Russia and Iran come together. From the mountain we looked down on the three countries and a heavy detachment of police and gendarmes kept us under exceptionally heavy guard to prevent any incident.

The Russian press already had

BOTH EX-CONVICTS, Sabato Giannotti (left), 27, and John Carfagno, 31, are booked in a New York police station on charges of assault and robbery. They were arrested when they arrived to keep a "date" with Mrs. Eleanor Jolly (right), 22, an actress-model they allegedly robbed of $800 the day before. Giannotti was also charged with attacking the girl. The actress had agreed to the "dates" on the prompting of police. A short time after this photo was made, Mrs. Jolly took an overdose of sleeping pills. She was revived. (International) complained that the expedition was a group of spies rather than seachers after the ark.

But probably of greater concern to Turkish security forces was the possibility of the group clashing with smugglers and Kurdish bandits who slip into Turkey from Iran in the area under exploration. Lt. Hail Borek, 25-year-old commander of Gendarme field forces, came along personally. His men carried machineguns, and kept scouts far ahead.

Father of Bride Dies as She Goes Down Church Aisle

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—(P)—Antonio Mioso, 62, couldn't keep the date yesterday to meet his daughter at the altar for her wedding.

As Mioso drove to the church with the bride-to-be, Josephine, 29, her mother, and brother, Steve, he became ill and slumped against the side of the car.

It was almost time for the wedding, so Steve sent his mother and sister on into the church with the promise that he and his father would follow soon. Then he called a rescue squad from the fire department and Mioso was taken to a hospital.

Steve joined the gay wedding party at the reception. There he told a newsman that only his three brothers and himself knew that the happy bride's father had died in the car as Josephine walked down the aisle to be married to Sam Tomasello, 39, a contractor.

"I'll tell the others about it tomorrow," he said.

Hawaiian Trip Pictures Shown By Brandenburg

Colorful Shots Of Island's Beauty at Rotary Meeting

Rotarians and guests at the Country Club Tuesday were taken on a delightful trip to Hawaii and return through the courtesy of Ray Brandenburg.

Of course it was done through motion pictures in color but everyone present enjoyed it, even Brandenburg whose running fire of comment during the showing of the pictures added considerable humor to the event.

The pictures were colorful and contained many interesting views of tropical growth in the Hawaiian Islands, visits to industrial plants, out door shows put on by the natives, scenes on the steamship enroute and many views of the Hula dancers including some of Ray himself in full Hula costume.

Brandenburg took the pictures while he and Mrs. Brandenburg were on this trip some months ago. On several occasions he had been called upon to show the film at Rotary but previous to Tuesday, something always happened to change the program. However, the delay in the showing did not detract from the interest in the pictures and Ray was given a hearty round of applause at the finish. The presentation of the program was made by William Clift whose remarks prepared those present for the frequent Brandenburg shots in the film showing him in close proximity to the Hula dancers.

During the business session of the club William Himmelsbach introduced Jack Boylan of the Washington High School who, as a Junior Rotarian, will be a guest of the club for two weeks. Frank Baker and Ray Brandenburg

Prison Ends Romance Racket Of Berlin's Charm Princess

BY KARL HEINZ SCHWAB
BERLIN, Sept. 28—(AP)—Brigitte was a charming girl, with plenty of allure, Richard, a wealthy businessman, found her so fascinating he wanted to marry her right away. But Brigitte sadly shook her head. The ingenious couple, it was charged, had netted more than 7,000 east marks (about $350) at least from the various count deals. The court was informed there were other victims who apparently had kept quiet. "Count" Emil Krause was sent to a Berlin prison for three years. And there will be nobody to court Brigitte while she serves a one-year sentence.

Richard was amazed, downcast and confused. His Brigitte a princess! But how could he ever become a count?

But Brigitte finally thought of a way to solve the problem. Her uncle, a Count Wilhelm, might adopt Richard, she said. Thus, formally adopted, Richard would be a count, too, and nothing would be in the way of their marriage. Richard was introduced to the dignified Count Wilhelm and the deal was made. He gave Wilhelm 1,000 east marks (about $50) "to cover the expenses."

The reunion of Brigitte, Count Wilhelm and Richard took place before a Soviet sector court. But the count, it turned out, was really Emil Krause and "princess" Brigitte his legal wife, whose real name was Emma.

Richard was shocked all over again, and so were seven other gentlemen, among them a lawyer, a doctor, an actor, a newspaperman and an engineer—all of them would-be counts.

bright blonde head. "You know yourself what I feel for you, dear," she said but it just can't be.

Pressed for the explanation why it couldn't be, Brigitte at last confessed that she had been born a princess. Her mother later had married a simple commoner. But, before she died, she had made Brigitte promise that she would marry at least a count, or never wed at all.

German Allowance Payment Confused

BERLIN, Germany —(AP)— In the confusion that reigned in the closing days of the war, Frau Schwarzenauer got a higher family allowance for her soldier husband than she was entitled to.

Recently, she received a letter from the bank through which the government payments were made. It said she had to pay the money back. Her husband, Paul, protested to the bank. But the officials were stubborn.

"Take it up with the German army command," they said. The army command ceased to exist in 1945.

Size Counts, Too, For Stop Signs

COLUMBUS, Sept. 28—(AP)— If the sign doesn't say "stop" in letters at least six inches high, it isn't a legal sign in Ohio.

The stop sign involved in a traffic damage suit here yesterday has letters only five inches high--and a Common Pleas Court jury refused to allow damages.

The autos of Darwin R. Butts and Ralph Shapiro, both of Columbus, collided here in October, 1947. Shapiro sued Butts, basing his suit in part on the claim Butts ignored a stop sign.

Conference Called For Ohio Democrats

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Albert A. Horstman, Democratic national committeeman for Ohio, plans a breakfast meeting here Thursday with his state's Democratic congressmen.

Congressmen confirmed the date, but told a reporter Horstman has not advised them what subjects he plans to bring up for discussion. He will be their host.

Old Mallets Giving Way To New Diesels

B. & O. Expanding Its Motive Power to Modern Equipment

The new Diesel locomotives which were put in use on the local division of the B. & O. last spring are proving economical and are doing the job of moving the heavy freight trains faster and more safely than the old steam locomotives. The B. & O. is adding more Diesels right along.

Powerful Mallet steam locomotives that have helped push the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's heavy freight trains over the steep grades of the Allegheny Mountains since the early years of this century are giving way to long, sleek, Diesel-electric "helpers" of even greater power.

This change will bring about marked economies, since the seven new Diesel-electrics, especially designed and built for this helper service, will replace several times that number of Mallets on the B. & O.'s three stiff mountain grades between Newburg and Terra Alta, W. Va. Five of the new locomotives already are in service, and the remaining two will start running within a few days.

The new locomotives used in the mountains are of 6,000 horsepower each, made up of four units of 1500 horsepower each. They were manufactured by the Electro Motive Division of General Motors Corporation after exhaustive tests with a pilot model last year.

Servicing facilities for the new locomotives in this helper service are being established at M & K Junction in West Virginia. These will include Diesel oil storage tanks and a servicing shop.

The Mallets replaced by the new Diesel-electric helpers will be put into helper and road service at other points on the B. & O. where they will replace less efficient power.

Of all classes of steam locomotive none is more typical of the B. & O. than the Mallet. For the first of all Mallet locomotives, the "Old Maud," as she was called, was designed, built and operated by the B. & O. in 1904. It was the answer to the need of a more powerful locomotive to be used primarily for operation in mountainous territory with heavy grades and sharp curves.

Hence the Mallet was designed as a single boiler unit, feeding two engines underneath and the two engines were so constructed that they could turn independently of each other on the track and so accommodate the entire locomotive to turning on sharp curves. Following the advent of the "Old Maud" on the B. & O., the value of the new type won quick recog-

THE SEVER-WILLIAMS CONSTRUCTION CO. of Washington C. H. was awarded the general contract for the new 68-bed Clinton County Memorial Hospital, at $481,900. Work starts next week. nition, and shortly they became the preferred type for the moving of heavy tonnage trains, especially in mountain territory.

Recruiting Dates Undergo Change

Beginning October 1, the traveling navy recruiter will be in the American Legion Hall, North Fayette Street, the second Tuesday of each month.

Previously, the recruiter was in Washington C. H. every Tuesday. Anyone interested in contacting the recruiter at times other than as stated before may do so Monday through Friday at the U. S. post office building, Chillicothe. The new itinerary has been announced by Harry B. Mace, BMC, USN of the navy recruiting substation located in the post office building in Chillicothe.

Man Kills Mother For Nagging Him

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—(AP)—George W. Gressock, 31, was in jail today for shooting his 63-year-old mother to death.

Gressock, a private policeman employed for night patrol by merchants of suburban Garfield Heights, signed a statement saying he fired four bullets from his police revolver into the chest of his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Gressock.

In the statement, reported Detective Harold C. Lockwood, Gressock maintained his mother drove him to the act by "nagging me about drinking."

Heart Attack Kills Engineer at Throttle

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 28—(AP)—The engineer of a New York Central passenger train died of a heart attack at the throttle of his locomotive.

His fireman took over the train. He brought it to Marysville and later to Columbus.

Change in Hog Price Support Plan Altered to Conditions

By CLARENCE J. BROWN

In spite of the bickerings going on between union leaders and the steel industry, it is still hoped and expected in Washington that a steel strike will be averted. However, there is a growing fear in official circles that a coal strike is in the offing. Crafty and ruthless John L. Lewis has had his coal miners working but three days a week, producing only enough coal to meet summer needs, but not enough for industry to store up a reserve supply. As a result Lewis will be in position, when cold weather comes, to cripple American industry and, if a strike is called, to enforce his demands for a new employment contract.

Eight important understandings or agreements were reached during the conference, which closed last week, between British Canadian and American officials in the effort to solve Britain's economic and financial difficulties. First: Britain will now be permitted to spend her Marshall Plan dollars elsewhere than in the United States, as previously required. Second: Britain will buy less American oil and sell more of her own Near East oil to markets now supplied by this country. Third: British ships will carry more Marshall Plan and other American goods to Europe, and American ships less. Fourth: American synthetic rubber policy will soon permit Britain selling more natural rubber to the United States, probably at a higher price. Fifth: Britain will not be permitted to discriminate against American goods in the "pound sterling" countries, making more difficult the sale of American products therein. Sixth: American officials will try to lower tariff walls, if Congress will permit, so British goods can compete more freely in this country with domestic commodities. Seventh: America promises to buy more British tin for strategic stock-piling at the present artificially high price of $1.03 per pound. Eighth: The British will be permitted to use United States dollars, furnished them as American Marshall Plan aid, for the purchase of goods in Canada, while in turn, Canada will have more dollars with which to buy in the United States.

As a sequel to the British-Canadian - American conference, which closed early last week, officials of the World Bank and Monetary Fund, are now meeting in Washington with representatives of many countries. The chief topic of discussion is the devaluation of foreign currencies to more realistic figures. The exchange value of the British pound sterling is expected to soon be drastically reduced from its present $4.03, with the rumored new value to be $3.22. The French franc which for years was valued at 20 cents, or five to the American dollar, and is now down to .36 of one cent, will probably drop to .30 of a cent, or to 330 to the dollar. All European currencies are scheduled to be devalued from 20 to 25 percent, if present plans work out. Strangely, the German mark, the Netherlands guilder, and the currencies of the Scandinavian countries will continue to have the highest values in American money, outside of the British pound.

Official figures show there was a pickup in business and industrial activities during August and a slight reduction in unemployment figures. As a result there is more optimism in the business world, and great rejoicing by, and much publicity from, administration leaders. Dr. Nourse, chairman of the president's Board of Economic Advisors, along with many business leaders, predicts business activities for the balance of 1949 will be good, but cautions it is still impossible to judge what economic conditions will prevail in early 1950.

Back in 1944, when war shortages of oil existed and the future supply questionable, Congress appropriated $6 million for government research on the production of oil from shale, and established a research plant near the huge oil shale deposits at Rifle, Colorado. Now—five years later—comes the pay-off. Government experts say they can now produce crude oil from shale at a cost as low as $2.20—and not over $2.50—per barrel. Today crude oil from wells is selling at $2.50 per barrel. In the Colorado deposit alone there is enough shale to produce seven times as much crude oil as the total the United States has produced since the first oil discovery some ninety years ago. The one Colorado shale deposit near Rifle holds 22 times more recoverable oil than now contained in all the proven petroleum reserves of the entire United States. There are additional huge oil shale deposits in Colorado and other western states. Several large oil companies have already established experimental plants for the production of crude oil from shale. Thus America's future oil supply, at a reasonable price, seems assured.

With huge supplies of processed pork in storage, heavy hog population on the farms of the nation, and an indicated drop in the price of corn and other feed, the Department of Agriculture has announced a change in its hog price-support program in an effort to escape the responsibility of maintaining, as is seemingly provided by law, a fixed minimum price for hogs in individual markets. Under the new program the government

Robert Carpenter (right) and lawyer Ellis Barrett. Mrs. John Lockwood and estranged mate, gun victim.

ATTORNEY JOHN LOCKWOOD admitted in an Atlanta, Ga., court that he was armed and looking for Robert S. Carpenter, his one-time close friend, in company with Carpenter's wife before four bullets were pumped into him. Carpenter, a civil court judge, is accused of the shooting, a tangled case involving two men, their wives, and a third woman. Lockwood, estranged from his own wife, was attorney for Mrs. Carpenter. He claims he and Mrs. Carpenter were trying to find Carpenter in company of another woman in a tourist cabin, for divorce evidence. He admitted he and Carpenter's wife spent three hours in back seat of his car just before the shooting.

will attempt to keep "average" hog prices, on the farm, from dropping below the support level set by law. Under this new program it will be possible, however, for hog prices to go below the government price support guarantee in some markets, and above in others. A monthly and weekly price support guide for the different chief market areas is expected to be issued by the government. The average support price for top grade hogs, as set for September, will be $18.50 per hundred, until Sept. 24th, and $18.25 for the remainder of the month, with prices dropping on an average of about 40 cents per hundred pounds each week during October and November. It is thus planned to bring hog prices down to the official over-all support figure of $14.85 by December 1.

During the past year the United States treasury has been confronted with a heavy increase in counterfeiting. Many bogus bills have been, and are being, put in circulation. Recently a large number of $20 counterfeit bills have shown up in Ohio. So, if our readers get hold of any new twenty dollar bills, we suggest they check them carefully to be certain the printing and etchings thereon are sharp and well defined, and that they are of the proper color. The president's appointment of former Senator John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, to be American delegate to the United Nations, is considered a good one. Good in the fact that Cooper is an able and well qualified man, and also good from a political angle, as it may take him out of the Kentucky senatorial contest next November, which he would have a good chance to win.

President Truman's naming of former senator Sherman Minton of Indiana, now a court of appeals judge, to be Justice of the Supreme Court succeeding Justice Rutledge, has not met with general approval in Washington. Minton, who has long been known as a radical New Dealer, sat next to Truman in the Senate, and has never been considered a man of judicial temperament. The appointment is taken as another indication Mr. Truman puts taking care of his personal friends ahead of the needs of the nation for able public servants.

$207,000 in Checks Grabbed by Thugs

CLEVELAND, Sept. 28—(AP)—Two strong arm thugs slugged Anton Grdina, 75, a local Slovenian leader, on the head and robbed him of $207,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Grdina, president of the North American Bank on the east side, was taking the canceled checks to the downtown Union Bank of Commerce as he does nightly on business days. He had just entered the bank building, he said, when two men threw a cloth over his head, slugged him four times and fled with his brown leather satchel.

None of the checks is worth anything to the thieves, Grdina said.

Cardinals Lead Shaved But Sox Hold Theirs

By RALPH RODEN
(By the Associated Press)
The St. Louis Cardinals' violation of the unwritten baseball rule "let sleeping dogs lie" may cost them the National League pennant.
Pittsburgh's Pirates, a docile sixth place club when Ralph Kiner isn't on the prowl, act like a pack of roaring lions when they clash with the swiftness from St. Louis—chiefly because of an early-season feud.

Pittsburgh chopped the Cards' advantage over Brooklyn to one game last night, scoring a 6-4 triumph over their despised rivals before 27,283 fans under the lights at Forbes Field. The Dodgers were idle.

While the Pirates jolted the Cards, the Boston Red Sox downed their "cousins," the Washington Senators, 6-4, to protect their one game American League lead over the New York Yankees. The Yanks defeated the Philadelphia Athletics, 3-1 in the afternoon.

Bean Ball Started It
The Pirates' long war with the Cards began early in the season when Ken Johnson, wild young Cardinal lefthander, beamed shortstop Stan Rokjck. The Pirates charged the Card catcher Joe Garagiola had deliberately called for the bean ball. Garagiola and Card Manager Eddie Dyer denied the accusation, but the Pirates were firm in their conviction.

The vendetta flamed anew in the Pirates' last visit to St. Louis. Enos Slaughter of the Cards spiked Pirate second baseman Danny Murtaugh and the Pirates vowed to take care of the Red

Kaufman Painters Make Clean Sweep

The Kaufman Painters were hotter than firecrackers Tuesday night when they racked up a 2483-pin total without benefit of handicap to take all three games of their Commercial League bowling match with the Sunlights at Bowland.

Tony Capuana set the Painters pace with 553, but it was overall consistency that turned the trick. That was the only clean sweep of the evening.

The Helfrich Market crew took the last two games after dropping the opener to the Farm Bureau Co-op team. Team balance gave the victors a 2844 total counting the 597 handicap.

The procedure was reversed when the Mark Constructors won the first two games from the Brown & Brockmeyer outfit before they lost the finale in the closest match of the evening. The Constructors had an edge of only 74 pins in the total scores.

Carroll Halliday's boys won the first and last games of their match but the Cudahy Packers took the middle tilt when they came through with a 936. The Hallidays pushed their last game to 1,042 with the aid of a 188-pin handicap.

Sons Grillers Win With 3125 Total

Sons Grillers sent pins flying over the pits at Bowland Tuesday night when they made a clean sweep of their Implemment League bowling match with Dutch Denton's crew.

Wally Noon blasted the lid off the high score column when he turned in games of 191, 256 and 167 for a 614-pin total to pace the Grillers to a team total of 2675, without handicap. Carl Noon was not far behind his hard-hitting son with games of 150, 214 and 220 for a 584-pin total.

Two other teams, Carpenter's Hardware and Warner's Service Station —also won all three of their games.

The Carpenter crew outscored the team from Mt. Sterling and the Warner boys swamped the VFW outfit.

In the other game, the Farm Bureau team won the first and last games from the Wackman Autoists, but were nosed out by six pins in the second.

Lion Cubs Are Ready For Opener at Xenia

Coach Ronald Guinn today announced the probable starting line-up of the Lion Cubs who will face Xenia Junior High at 7 P. M. Thursday.

About 35 Cubs will make the trip to Xenia, for the Cubs' opener, said Guinn.

The Cubs will operate from the fast-moving T-formation, with Kemp Allemang handling the ball at quarterback.

Southpaw Allemang and full-back Don Walton are scheduled to do the passing, with the main running chores carried by Cecil Childress and Charles Holbrook.

Left end Jon Pensyl will probably call plays, while Dick Wilt will be pulled out of his right end post for the kicking.

Guinn has high hopes for Holbrook, who has been showing up impressively in practice scrimmages.

"In addition to the two teams already lined up," said Ron, "we will take along anyone who looks good in the final workouts."

"I would like to take all the boys to Xenia," he added regretfully, "but we just don't have the bus room."

Guinn said he would try to obtain Gardner Park for a short workout under the lights Wednesday night to accustom his boys to nightplaying for the Xenia opener Thursday.

Next week, the Cubs will face Circleville in their first home game at Gardner Park.

The Lion Cubs, averaging about 150 on the line and 143 pounds in the backfield, carry last year's record of six wins and one loss into the 1949 season.

But Guinn has lost most of the 1948 squad to the varsity. Just five members of this new squad have previous playing experience.

The Xenia Junior High forward wall averages about 155, while their backfield weight is unknown.

Guinn said he would not use the platoon system. "Each player will be used where he fits in best, whether on defense or offense and depending upon the situation," said the Cub coach.

Here are the two teams that will open the WHS Cubs' season at Xenia:

"T" Added To Lions' Diet

Squad Works Hard on New Plays for Friday

"The boys are working hard on them," said Coach Fred Pierson, when asked about the new T-formation plays given to the varsity for Friday's home game.

The potent "T" being fed the Blue Lions is expected to add zip to their offense.

Carl Smith will do more running with the new plays, said Pierson.

Smith is a hard man to nail in the open and the "T" should favor his type of running, as well as Joe Burke's charges into the line and Alshire's runs on the quick-opening plays.

Success with the "T" depends mostly on the timing. The hole in the line is there one second, gone the next.

The Lions have been working hard on the plays, aiming at the coordination that will put power into their offense.

The forward wall of their Cincinnati Hughes opponents this Friday averages about 200 pounds, so the Lions will have to resort to precision and fast-getaways to topple the giants.

Alshire will probably be in the key ballhandling spot at quarterback.

The visitors are not to be undeterred by their 62 to 6 loss to Cincinnati Purcell last week.

Scout Ronald Guinn reported Purcell as being "one of the smoothest-operating high school teams I've ever seen." They just ran the bigger Hughes players off their feet.

Pierson said, hopefully, that Barry Smith may be ready for Friday's battle.

But, if not, George Beaver, who was a standout last week, is a "most reliable stand-in."

Guinn said he would not use the platoon system. "Each player will be used where he fits in best, whether on defense or offense and depending upon the situation," said the Cub coach.

GOP Campaign Centers on Ohio

Midwest Farm Vote Immediate Goal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—(AP)—Republican strategists plan an all-out drive to win back the mid-west's farm vote, with emphasis on Ohio, in the 1950 elections.

Victor Johnston, who heads the Republican senatorial campaign drive told a reporter:

"The mid-west states will tell the story as to whether the Republican party is going to make any gains in the 1950 elections.

"Loss of Ohio, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and such states last year cost us the presidential election. Any substantial gains we make must come from the mid-west."

And, he added, Republican hopes are high.

The emphasis on Ohio stems from the fact that defeat of Senator Robert A. Taft for reelection would blight his hopes for the Republican presidential nomination two years later.

And then, too, are the big inroads the Democrats made last year on Ohio's Republican strength in the national House of representatives. The loss of eight House seats to the Democrats was the worst reverse the Ohio GOP has suffered in a congressional election.

Republican House and Senate campaigners said they will dwell heavily on shrinking revenues of the farmers in the nation and Ohio.

They figure that the Democratic strength in farm areas which surprised them last year reflected a "don't-rock-the-boat" spirit among farmers at a time when farm income was high.

The U. S. department of agriculture says cash receipts of the nation's farmers in the first seven months of this year were more than $1,400,000,000 below those in the corresponding period of 1948.

In Ohio, the department reported farmers' cash receipts of $490,063,000 in those months lagged more than $86,000,000 behind those for the same seven months last year. Receipts were reported down $95,792,000 in Minnesota, $69,500,000 in Illinois, $151,000,000 in Iowa, and $40,000,000 in Michigan.

The department has reported a steady seven months drop, without predicting when the down trend will stop.

Johnston and other Republican leaders said repercussions in the ballot boxes are a logical sequel, and they want to help that to happen.

Democrats already have started a major drive to hold the mid-western ground they gained.

The farmer in that area is about to be a most sought-after man.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
TONY and Chris were silent, and Chris thought his own thoughts. Lilia had spoken to him last night. They'd been alone and she'd said, "I'm thinking of going to Maui for a while." Her aunt lived on Maui, Lilia often visited her. But Chris hadn't let it go at that. He'd asked, "Because of Amenly's cable?"

She said simply, "I don't want to meet him again, Chris. And I'd be sure to. Aunt Cordelia will entertain for him, I can't always refuse; besides, he'll say he knows us. I can't risk it."

"For your sake or Tom's?"

She said, "He and Tom had a row, yes. You know Tom and his quick temper. But Tom was sorry afterward, he said they were both tight, perhaps Amenly didn't mean to be offensive. And Tom's devoted to you, to all the family. If Roger Amenly were your guest he'd behave himself."

"You'd better tell me the truth, Lilia."

She said, "I was a fool. I didn't mean to let it go so far..."

"How far?"

"Not that far, Chris, but he believed, he thought..."

She'd broken off then, and he'd asked sharply, "Why? Why did you let him think—whatever he believed?"

"I was bored. Oh, it sounds so stupid, and it was," she said in exasperation, "but life had gone on here for so long in the same way. I felt as if it would be like that till I died. I looked in the mirror, I'd changed very little but I felt unattractive, as if there were nothing ahead for me."

"What about Alex?"

She said, with difficulty, "Alex is wonderful, everything that's good and kind. I don't deserve him. I never have."

She did not say, I am in love with him. If she were she would not have come to this flat stretch of living, arid and desolate.

"Alex loves you very much."

"I know, I know. If we had had children... But that's stupid too. I can't, Chris. You know medical statistics prove that it is much more likely to be the husband's fault—only 'fault' isn't the right word—than the wife's. But not in this case. But would things have been different? Surely children don't solve everything, do they?"

"I don't know," he'd answered, "certainly in my parents' case, they constituted a problem."

"Alex made me take that trip with Tom, which we couldn't afford, to get me away, to give me a change," she said solemnly. He said, "I know, that we haven't mentioned Amenly's wife." "They had been living together for quite a while before their marriage. He told me so," she said dully. "He said she'd threatened him with some sort of nasty lawsuit if he didn't marry her. So he did, on the understanding that after a suitable interval she'd divorce him. He said she was willing, because she'd have a legal right to alimony or a settlement."

"Nice guy."

"Here comes Terry. She's such a darling. I hope she likes me, and that you're terribly happy."

That was that. Chris could see in the blanks. Lilia had once been in love touchingly and with candor, as he had been. The Petersons cried, what nonsense, at her age, she could not throw herself away, moreover it wasn't serious. But they hadn't worried about his age when Jack put in his bid. They'd simply said, how suitable, how delightful, but of course it couldn't be formalized as yet by an announced engagement. How had she felt about Jack? She hadn't told him, on the day she said, "I'm marrying Jack, Chris, when I'm nineteen." That was the day Chris had walked out of the house on Diamond Head. He hadn't been in it since, until last week when the Petersons had a small family dinner for Terry.

He had seen Lilia once after that day, and at Naniola in the following spring, when she had cried in his arms and said, "But it isn't any use, Chris," and when he'd said, "We can run away," she cried harder than ever and told him, "They'd have it annulled; and besides, we haven't anything."

Jack had walked in on that little scene and presently a sampan had taken Chris away from Naniola in, he remembered, something of a storm. And the storm had gone on after he left.

Jack wasn't marrying Lilia when she was nineteen or ninety. Convinced that her attachment to his cousin had been of the valentine and schoolgirl variety, he'd been willing to overlook it. But not hearing her say, "I don't love him, how could I?"

But Chris had nothing except a job which he disliked and at which he wasn't especially good. And after a while Lilia had run off, not with him, but with Alex, who had always been doggedly in the background, if without hope, and ten years older than Lilia. The Gurneys were not the Russells but they were solid and frugal, respected and liked. Alex had a job

He was having a very good time. Did he intend to write articles about Hawaii, how long would he be here, was he planning a novel? Roger shrugged amiably. He could not say, really. He'd come for an indefinite time, and to relax. As to articles or novels, one never knew, but all material was grist to the author's mill. Yes, the coast line was very beautiful. Yes, Diamond Head was extraordinarily impressive.

Snap went the camera, scratch went the pencil. There were others aboard, more fashionable, more celebrated; Amenly had been something of an afterthought. The senator, the two Hollywood stars, the singer—these were really important.

Frank Ammon of Piqua directed four Dayton residents to the mayor's home Sept. 9 as a place where the quartet could buy whisky.

The action was false and malicious, Mayor and Mrs. Trueby said in their suit.

WHAT CROPS NEED IT?

All crops including pastures, need lime to supply calcium and magnesium. The amounts consumed vary. Grasses and legumes use much more than grain crops.

HERE'S A GUIDE

A soil building program is a forage program. It is one which calls for increasing acreages of ladino, alfalfa, and the common clovers — and these all call for lime in heavy amounts. Based on these facts you must provide ample lime for the length of the rotation.

IMPORTANT THINGS TO REMEMBER

Base your needs on soil tests. Such tests are a good guide to follow. In general, it takes at least two tons per acre to grow good grass and legumes and allow for leaching losses.

NOTE: Bring samples of your soil to us for a free test.
